The History of WEB Network

WEB is a national network representing more than 25 professions and 30 areas of expertise within the pension and benefits industry. The organization was started in 1982 in Washington, D.C., by a group of benefits professionals who gathered monthly to share their professional experiences. Today, with many chapters and members, the WEB Network is committed to helping define the role of the benefits professional in the 21st century.

WEB's Mission

The mission of WEB is to participate in the on-going education and development of employee benefits executives by providing the most current benefits related information in a collaborative environment. WEB is committed to helping define the evolving role of the benefits professional in the 21st century. As changes in legislation, technology and market forces reshape the profession, products and delivery systems, WEB will continue to develop programs, educational opportunities and services to help its members meet the demand of the challenges ahead.
